“ It seems like yesterday we were running the streets and acting like fools. You were always the peace keeper among our group. You were the one there for me during a difficult time when no one else even knew what was going on. We would all pile into that clown car and ride around town just listening to music and you and I would would put the guys up to doing stupid things. Just know that im praying for your family, friends, and mostly your babies. Until we meet again my friend i will be missing you.
